FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

We are solidly in mid-cycle and the strongest economic growth is behind us. Central banks are likely to start moving away from their extremely easy monetary policies, while fiscal policy will remain supportive of growth. Supply chain and energy bottlenecks, as well as risks in China's property sector may cause volatility, but will not derail the economic cycle. Against this backdrop, the managers maintain a cautious stance towards broad market equity risk. They maintain equity hedges in the portfolio, while continuing to selectively take risk in parts of the market that are better valued and stand to do well here onwards. Going forward, equity dividends will be an important source of income, but selectivity in regions and sectors will be important. With supportive liquidity and low default rates, the preference for high yield and some emerging markets over investment grade credit remains in place. The managers also continue to add to attractive opportunities in alternatives, as well as assets with low sensitivity to higher rates.
