FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

The war in Ukraine and associated sanctions on Russia increase the risk of further negative supply shocks to commodities and supply chain disruptions, adding to the case for persistently high inflation and slower growth. Additionally, the withdrawal of liquidity and fiscal support, as well as the squeeze on disposable income hamper the outlook for growth. Consequently, the managers are cautiously positioned. The exposure to Growth assets was reduced, while Yield and Defensive assets were increased. The managers reduced European and global equities, rotating into Asian equities. They added to regional equity hedges and trimmed the allocation to financials due to growth concerns. Elsewhere, the allocation to US high yield was reduced and that to hybrid bonds was increased. They added to emerging market hard currency debt, which provides exposure to commodity exporting countries. The managers continue to favour Chinese government bonds and purchased a position in 30-year US Treasuries to add to defensiveness.
