FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Aggressive policy tightening in the face of stubborn inflation has made a 2023 recession in the US a high likely event, and even earlier in Europe. Both top-down and bottom-up forecasts will need to fall further to fully reflect the downside to growth ahead. Corporate earnings expectations remain too optimistic and should continue to fall, adding to further downside risk for equities. The Advanced portfolios continue to underweight equity and advocate a neutral position towards Investment Grade credits.
